The shuttle system on campus is a confusing and inconvenient method of travel. As it stands, it is too tedious to get the hang of and often isn't worth the headache compared to walking. In specific, there is not a good way of knowing when and where the busses will stop, and the transloc app that exists to alleviate this problem is too difficult to navigate.